

Wild Chorus - an Acoustic Summer Perfume

A stretched yodeling choir – on the edge of stillness.
Harmony that carries, then dissolves into free calling, wild voicing.

Not entirely human:
voices blend with rustling, wingbeats, animal sounds.
Hybrid beings sing in tropical heat.

The sound lingers in the air like a scent – fleeting, close, open to memory.

Wild Chorus is a breathing fabric of voices, noises, and electronic tones.
Through stretching, slowing down, and layering, a space emerges – an open field for intuitive listening and personal resonance.

Here, the human and the non-human meet, sound and silence, closeness and strangeness.

In the suspended flow of sound, a quiet counterpoint arises – to the world's tempo, to control, to clear boundaries.
A lingering act of listening – open to transformation and ambiguity.
